AEGON Championships 2010

7th – 13th June 2010, Queen's Club

June in London is a time when attention turns to tennis. The most prestigious men's grass court tournament in the UK begins and has been a highlight of the summer sporting season for over three decades. 2009 saw an exciting first AEGON Championships, where a packed Centre Court witnessed a number of breathtaking firsts. Andy Murray was crowned the 'King of Queen's', beating James Blake in a thrilling final to claim his first grass court title and his first ATP World Tour title on British soil. With this Victory, Murray also became the first British player in 71 years to win the title at The Queen's Club. Andy Murray will return in 2010 to defend his title and the 2008 Champion, Rafael Nadal, will also return to challenge for the trophy.

The convenient central London location, exceptional grass courts, unrivalled cuisine and the participation of the top male players provide an excellent combination for a VIP hospitality experience. Whether it is to entertain clients, friends or colleagues, The National Sporting Club is delighted to offer two, first class hospitality options which are sure to impress.

The Terrace: A stylish lounge, contemporary fine dining and spacious garden terrace with direct access to your centre court seats in the exclusive South Stand.

Package includes private tables (2-12 guests), centre court seats in South Stand, open air garden terrace, canapé reception, four course lunch, afternoon tea, company signage, plasma TV's, daily newspapers and Wi-Fi, souvenir programme and seat cushion for each guest.

Private Dining: Exclusive use of private rooms for entertaining 12 guests. Situated within the Members Club House, overlooking the Real Tennis Courts. Charming and luxurious, providing the perfect setting for entertaining your guests.
